

What are PORTALS
and how can they benefit
your business
or organization?

PORTALS consolidate specific functions and access to data on a website in an organized manor. For example Yahoo and MSN.com are portals. Portals are the paths users take through your website for product information, sales, services and blogs.

PORTALS by Databerry connect your employees, vendors and customers to your company's data / services through secure, effective Portals. Databerry's experts design Portals to optimize the user experience by enabling users to customize their portal according to their individual preferences. This produces an enjoyable experience for customers, time-saving solutions for staff and reduces your overall business costs.
